Prospects of Selling Whaler Margarett Local People Counted in Vacation Exodus—Others Who Are Entertaining Friends.

Now Unloading Cargo of Sperm Oil-Carried In Eulk on Board-Hope Valley Man Here to Fut It Into Casks.

The whaling schooner Margarett, now lying at the new wharf at Dawley's lumber yard, has finished what is probably her last voyage for her presant owners, as negotiations for her sale are now pending and the whaler may change hands in a short time.

The work of unloading the cargo of sperm oil, which amounts to between 360 and 370 barrels, will be begun this morning, freight cars having been switched in onto the siding beside the whaler Tuesday afternoon. The unloading will take two days, possibly three, and from here the oil will be sent to New Bedford.

The ten months' voyage that began when the Margarett left Norwich on the morning of Oct. 14, 1909, and ended Monday evening shortly after 6 o'clock, after a three lours' tow from New London, where the whaler arrived Saturday afternoon, was a generally uneventful one. At the outset the schooner sprang a leak which kept her at the Barbadees for nine weeks. The uppermost of the new timbers which were put into the boat at that time can be seen on her starboard side between bow and amidships. The Margarett ran into considerable bad weather on the voyage encountering the first storm when crossing the guil stream the latter part of October. Cruising around for whales on the craft fell in with more rough weather and more than once was forced to ride out the gale. Still the Kingbolt Broke.

Two young men and two young women, the occupants of a two-scated surrey hired from a Bath street livery stable, were comfortably proceeding to Cardner lake on Sunday for a day's outing, when at Leffingwell the unexpected happened. Without the least pected happened. Without the least of the remainder of the vehicle. The warning the front wheels parted from the remainder of the vehicle. The wagon body hit the roaded with a thump, and the young man driving was thrown out and slightly bruised. The other three surprised pleasures wich liveryman sent out another team and the party continued to the lake. A broken kingbolt was the cause at the trouble.

DRAKE LOOKS LIKE WINNER. Has Good Lead in Open House Cro-

Drake and Simpson continued to hold first and second places respectively in the Open House croquet tournament as the result of the play on Tuesday. With Drake in the lead and having six games to play and Simpson only three to play, the prospects are bright for Drake to finish in first place by a good margin.

Second Place.

bright for Drake to finish in first place by a good margin.

A feature of the play Tuesday was the number of sets won in straight games, Colberg, Drake, McMahon and Simpson all running up this record on their opponents. Whitney, who has been playing in losing form all through the tournament, struck a better gait and helped his standing by getting 6 out of 11 games. Blackburn went the other way and dropped to last place by losing 7 out of 9 games.

The following were the games played:

tioned points, using regular train service thereto. On arrival of the department special train at Grand Central station, New York city, 3.25 p. m., the entire delegation will be transferred by taxicabs to the West 23d street terminal, to leave 4.15 p. m., connecting at Jersey City with special train leaving at 4.20 p. m., via the New Jersey Central lines. On arrival at Atlantic City members of the purty traveling on plans 2 and 3 will be transferred to the Isleworth, Elberon and Continental hotels, where American plan accommodations, rooms and meals will be provided for the entire stay, Sept. 20, 21 and 22.
